Heroes come in all shapes and sizes...

You don't have to be 6'5" and 230 pounds to be a hero. Of course, that kind of size DOES help on the football field, as Indianapolis Colts quarterback Peyton Manning can attest to. At the 13th Annual Red Cross Evening of Stars gala, Manning spoke of his appreciation for the Red Cross volunteers who reached out to help his neighbors and friends survive the devastation of Hurricane Katrina. It was the size of the hearts of those complete strangers that impressed Manning.

Jack Lewis Fine Jewelry believes in Manning's message. Ever since its inception, Jack Lewis has supported the Evening of Stars event because it raises money for one of the greatest organizations in Central Illinois, the American Red Cross of the Heartland. That is also why Jack Lewis supports the annual Saluting our Heroes breakfast.

Jack Lewis' own John Carter, Board Member of the Heartland Chapter of the American Red Cross, co-hosted the first Saluting Our Heroes Breakfast. John quoted Will Rogers to convey the purpose of the event, "We can't all be heroes, because somebody has to sit on the curb and applaud when they go by."

Please join us on the curb as we applaud the heroic efforts of our neighbors. For corporate sponsor or ticket information, contact John Carter at Jack Lewis or call the American Red Cross of the Heartland at 662-0500.
